

THREE BELIEVED BURNED TO DEATH MORROW REPORT OPPOSES HOUSE COMMITTEE

RECOMMENDATIONS CONFLICT WITH AIR CRAFT SUGGESTIONS

Report Conservative—Congress To Decide Between Two.

Washington, Dec. 3.—The Morrow board has joined issue with the house air-craft committee on the subject of a department of national defense and congress must decide between their conflicting recommendations.

Rejecting outright the proposal for such a department which the house committee has endorsed in its report, the Morrow commission finds things better as they are and recommends only improvements in the existing establishment.

The Morrow report, which turns down all of Col. William Mitchell's basic propositions, is conservative in tenor but exhaustive in recommendations of needed and desired improvements of administration which it holds calculated not only to improve the national air defense but promote commercial aviation on which the nation must rely in wartime.

Emphasis is laid upon two points:

1—Aviation is developing so rapidly that no established policy for the future can be laid down.
2—Whatever is done to promote civilian aviation strengthens the nation's air force against possible war.

With these in mind the board proposes, as improvements in present organization:

Creation of assistant secretaries of war, navy and commerce to give attention to aviation's needs.

More generous treatment of army and navy flyers.

Change of name of the army air service to air corps and addition of flyers to the army general staff. Giving of special medals and ribbons for air heroism in war and peace.

Extra pay for flying and life and accident insurance.

Use of enlisted men as pilots as well as officers.

Creation of two brigadier generals in the army air service.

An even flow of government aircraft purchases and standardization of designs to assist the aircraft industry.

The board flatly denies that the country is in any danger of attack from the air and says the nation's air force is second only to that of France among world powers.

No airplane capable of making a trans-Atlantic flight to our country with a useful military load and of returning to safety is now in existence," it said.

As to Col. Mitchell's assertion that the next war will be decided in the air, the board says:

"The next war may well start in the air but in all probability will wind up as the last war did, in the mud."

DERELICT LEAVES BENEFACITOR MONEY

Kent, O., Dec. 3.—Seventeen years ago J. L. "Jack" Harris, a plumber, fed and clothed a nondescript derelict who huddled in the doorway of his establishment to escape the cold.

In addition, Harris employed the man and they became fast friends. The man worked for Harris several months, then suddenly disappeared. Harris considered the incident closed and forgot him.

But now, Harris has been notified that he had been named in the will of James Harrington, old magnate who died recently in Kansas City, Mo., leaving him $98,000.

Inquiry established that Harrington was the derelict whom Harris had befriended.

FARMERS TOLD HOW TO WAR ON CORN BORER

Columbus, O., Dec. 3.—The European corn borer menace has become so serious that men have been assigned to instruct the farmers in combating the insect pest, Charles C. Truax, state director of agriculture announced today.

With Ohio's foremost crop threatened, the department of agriculture has taken this method to curb the spread of the borer into new territory, Truax said.

Among the counties, to which men have been assigned are: Lucas, Wood, Sandusky, Seneca, Erie, Huron, Crawford, Lorain, Lake, Trumbull and Ashtabula.

The men assigned include J. H. Speaker Sandusky; J. C. Gardner, Delaware and Frank Galpin, Bowling Green.

Seek Woman In Murder Case

RHINELANDER CASE EXPECTED TO REACH JURY ON THURSDAY

Plaintiff's Counsel To Conclude Argument Late Thursday

White Plains, N. Y., Dec. 3.—That the Rhinelander annulment case will not reach the supreme court jury until tomorrow was indicated when Isaac N. Mills, eloquent veteran of the Westchester bar announced that he probably would not conclude his summation in behalf of Leonard Kip Rhinelander until toward the end of today's session.

Mills already has argued for five hours. He has asked that Leonard's marriage to the former Alice Jones, daughter of a negro taxi driver be set aside on the frank theory that miscegenation is bad for society.

With this promise and with the further statement that his client would rather be "dead than wed" under existing circumstances, the 75-year-old counsel took up point by point the evidence marshalled by the defense.

Should Mills be unable to conclude his summation before afternoon, it is probable that Justice Morschauser will wait until tomorrow morning before issuing his charge to the jury.

COOLIDGE BLAMED BY DRY COMMITTEE

Washington, Dec. 3.—Responsibility for failure to enforce the eighteenth amendment was laid at President Coolidge's door today by the twenty-six reform groups comprising the United Committee for Prohibition Enforcement.

The annual report of the committee chairman, Clinton N. Howard, Rochester, N. Y., was made public as an expression of the committee's sentiment that the enforcement question resolved into this:

"Up to the president or down with the constitution."

"After asserting the meeting was a 'crisis convention' in which 'there is nothing to be gained by foolish optimism,'" Howard said.

"The president has done some fine moralizing on the general enforcement of law but he never yet has definitely and unreservedly committed his administration to the enforcement of the 18th amendment as provided by his oath to support and defend the constitution."

MITCHELL CASE IS NEAR END BELIEF

Washington, Dec. 3.—The Mitchell court martial entered its sixth week with the end of the famous proceedings almost in sight.

Army prosecutors of the flying Colonel predicted the case would go to the jury of generals by Dec. 15. All their testimony in rebuttal to Mitchell's charges is scheduled for presentation between now and December 12. The remainder of this week will be devoted to giving the Navy its input and next week the Army and the General Staff will make their reply to Mitchell's allegations of incompetency, negligence and almost treasonable administration.

The Mitchell defense will then be given an opportunity to call a few witnesses in rebuttal.

Vague Description Police Clue To Absconded Tenant Where Body Of Wealthy Ex-Minister Is Found

Minneapolis, Dec. 3.—A woman of vague description was hunted today by the army of police and private detectives in the most baffling murder mystery in the annals of the Twin Cities.

Mrs. Mae Reynolds, object of the search, is the absconded tenant of a shabby apartment where the body of Knute B. Birkeland, one time Lutheran minister and later successful business operative and author, was found early this week—apparently the victim of a subtle poison.

Only a few days before Birkeland's mysterious disappearance, a woman giving her name as Mrs. Reynolds bought furnishings and rented the apartment ostensibly to open a beauty parlor. It was in this apartment on two kitchen tables shoved end to end that the body, fully clothed, the head resting on pillows, was found by the janitor.

Apparently the beauty parlor was a blind never intended for permanent occupancy.

Descriptions of the woman provided by the janitor and the furniture dealer are indefinite.

That Birkeland was murdered to avenge some fancied and brooded business wrong, is the most favored theory of the case.

ANTI-GAMBLING WAR MAY DEVOLVE INTO EFFORT TO OUST SHERIFF

Bender Law May Be Used In Plan To Remove Kohler Safety Director Leading Fight On Official

Cleveland, O., Dec. 3.—The anti-gambling war launched here by Safety Director Barry may devolve itself into a movement to oust Sheriff Fred Kohler under provisions of the Bender law, according to indications here today.

A public mass meeting in which the Church Federation, several civic organizations and others will participate will be held late today and its was expected, although it was not stated definitely that the move to depose the sheriff will then take place.

Safety Director Barry yesterday called upon Gov. Donahoe to compel Sheriff Kohler to investigate alleged wide-open gambling in Cuyahoga County and oust him if he refused, but the executive replied he was not empowered to oust a sheriff unless violations of the prohibition law were involved.

NUMBER OF HUNTERS IN OHIO INCREASING

Columbus, O., Dec. 3.—The number of hunters in Ohio are increasing every year and they are becoming better sportsmen, according to D. O. Thompson, chief of the state fish and game division.

A record number of 430,000 hunting licenses have been distributed to the counties for sale this year, Thompson said. More demands for copies of the state hunting laws leads Thompson to believe the hunters are trying to follow the rules.

The number of arrests for exceeding the limit and for trespassing have not increased in proportion with the added interest in hunting, Thompson declared.

"Game is more plentiful than last year, Thompson asserted, and hunters are getting the limit in pheasants and rabbits.

ALLEGED SLAYER DENIES HIS GUILT

Chardon, O., Dec. 3.—Joseph Morgan, 71, on trial charged with the murder of Julius Fraunlich, aged hermit, shot and killed Fraunlich in self defense he testified today when the trial was resumed.

Morgan and Fraunlich were neighbors of long standing, according to testimony.

Last April the aged men quarreled. Morgan was severely beaten with a stone and pulled a revolver and fired, to save his life he testified.

The trial began yesterday and was expected to be finished today.

BELIEVE GOVERNOR FERGUSON PLANS TO IGNORE SOLON CALL

Texas Executive May Adopt This Means of Checking Move

Austin, Tex., Dec. 3.—There is a possibility that Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson will ignore the petition asking her to call a special session of the Texas legislature.

That December 10 may pass without the woman governor having issued official proclamation was seen today as an effective method to sidetrack administration critics and check the proposition of assembling the lower house by Speaker Les Satterwhite.

Additional credence was given this report when it was recalled that the representative charged with delivering the petition signed by about fifty house members to the executive sanctuary was refused admittance.

It was further considered that the governor and her advisor husband, former Governor James E. Ferguson, had taken the proposition under advisement and decided to assume a hands-off attitude, believing it would lend the intimation they were not taking the criticism seriously.

On the other hand, former Governor Jim in denying that any official statement had been given to newspaper men regarding a special session intimated that one would be given out after a two days respite from official worries at her former home near Temple, Texas. Governor Ferguson returned to the capitol last night. She avoided newspaper men.

CORONER'S VERDICT FIXES MURDER GUILT

Responsibility for the death Monday of Ulysses Deatherage, 37, colored, of the Wilmington and Xenia Pike, is charged to Robert H. Turner, 35, colored, his brother-in-law by Acting Coroner R. O. Copey, following his inquest Tuesday.

Acting Coroner Copey's formal verdict is as follows: "Ulysses Deatherage came to his death by being murdered by one R. H. Turner, who shot Deatherage with a .38 caliber revolver while said Deatherage was attempting to escape from the fire of Turner's gun."

Squire Copey was appointed by Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall acting coroner because of the illness of Coroner R. L. Haines.

Members of both the Deatherage and Turner families testified at the inquest Tuesday and denied Deatherage had been "paying too much attention" to Turner's daughter.

Mabel Turner, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Turner, also testified and denied her father's allegations.

KIPLING STILL IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Burwash, Eng., Dec. 3.—Rudyard Kipling's condition was understood today to continue serious. His family declined information in keeping with the great writer's abhorrence of publicity. His own physician, Dr. Curties and the King's physician, Lord Dawson were in consultation this morning.

A bulletin at noon said Kipling had passed a better night and that there had been no extensions of the disease which is now characterized as pleural pneumonia.

Kipling despite his sixty years, maintained his strength.

Mrs. Kipling, who was Caroline Balestier, an American, nursed him unceasingly, the last two nights. His daughter is in Belgium.

Another bulletin was to be issued at 7 o'clock tonight.

Dr. John J. Tigert, United States Commissioner of Education, is one of the delegates.

KIRBY TRIAL NOW ENTERS THIRD DAY

Cleveland, Dec. 3.—The trial of Josiah Kirby, former president of the $30,000,000 Cleveland discount company charged with using the mails to defraud entered its third day in Federal Court here today.

Attorneys for Kirby were confident that another point could be scored in his favor, following the clash between defense and prosecuting attorneys late yesterday.

During cross-examination of Leiter Wolf, secretary of the Dollar Building and Loan Company, Columbus and former salesman for Kirby, defense attorney Day succeeded in making Wolf say that the word "first" mortgage was not used exclusively in the sale of stocks.

District Attorney A. E. Bernstein and Day clashed when on direct examination, Wolf had used "first mortgage."

Federal Judge Kilharts upheld the defense.

ROBBER CONFESSES TO RECENT MURDER

Bryan, O., Dec. 3.—Frank Stencel, in the county jail here on charges of breaking into a railway station has confessed he strangled a boy to death in a woodland near Wauwatosa, Wis., recently according to Sheriff Burkhardt.

Burkhardt said Stencel had prepared a written confession in which the youth said that remorse, coupled with his arrest for the alleged station robbery had driven him to confess the murder of the boy at Wauwatosa.

According to word Burkhardt said he had received from the Wisconsin town, two boys were recently strangled to death near there. Their assailant evaded capture.

Stencel was taken into custody a month ago.

BUSINESS DISTRICT OF COUNCIL BLUFFS DESTROYED IN BLAZE

Heroic Elevator Boy Saves Hotel Guests at Risk of Life.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Dec. 3.—Fire destroyed a block of buildings in the heart of the business district here early today, doing damage estimated at $500,000. Three persons are missing and it is feared they were burned to death in the destruction of the Grand Hotel.

The fire started in the Continental Furniture Company directly across the street from the hotel, presumably from crossed radio wires.

At 7 a. m. the fire was raging uncontrolled. Several companies of the Amosha Fire department, assisted local fire fighters.

One hundred and forty guests were asleep in the Grand Hotel as the fire broke out.

Heroism of Milton Allen, elevator boy who stayed at his post even while the entire east front of the structure was an inferno probably saved the lives of many.

Allen made repeated trips carrying guests to safety in his elevator and was finally forcibly dragged from the cage by firemen when the flames got too close.

The damage to the hotel was estimated at $250,000.

CABINET FINANCIAL PROGRAM IS PASSED BY FRENCH CHAMBER

Briand Succeeds In Plan After Long Night Session

Paris, Dec. 3.—After having wrung from the chamber a vote of confidence in the early morning hours by sheer force of his personality, Premier Aristide Briand, before noon today succeeded by a vote of 257 to 229 in obtaining passage in the chamber of the whole cabinet financial program.

This vote came after Briand, following a trying night of fighting had for the second time raised the question of confidence.

On his first vote of confidence Briand was sustained 238 to 113 after a moving speech.

Tired deputies accepted the fiscal reform section of the finance project comfortably—228 to 178 and likewise the increased taxation on local and foreign stocks and bonds—230 to 188, but they faltered as they approached the proposal to increase by 7,500,000,000 the French note circulation.

This was the "inflation article" and there the deputies gave Briand only a majority of seven.

It was a grueling test for the man who eight times had held the Premiership of France. For months he has been under doctors' orders.

Briand is now prepared to take his fight to the senate.

Briand's triumph came after the socialist leader, Leon Blum, had announced that his followers would vote against inflation.

BROKER KILLED BY TAXI IN NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 3.—As Francis Merges, 55, prominent insurance broker, was walking to his Bronx home, early today a taxicab, believed stolen, crashed into him and sent him sprawling on the rainy pavement. Death was instantaneous, physicians said.

The occupant or occupants of the taxicab fled.

No eye witnesses have been found. A man, his attention caught by the abandoned cab, discovered the body and called police.

DENSE LONDON-LIKE FOG ACTS AS TRAFFIC REGULATOR WEDNESDAY

Xenia had much in common with London, England, Wednesday night when a dense fog blanketed the city.

The city was enveloped in a heavy mist beginning about 7 o'clock, and its density was probably greater than at any other time this year.

Despite this thick fog, no serious automobile accidents were reported to authorities. The fog proved a good traffic regulating device and motorists drove at a snail's pace along the streets, careful to avoid collisions.

In many instances drivers of autos and other vehicles voluntarily parked their cars rather than run the danger of accidents by continuing because of the low visibility.

The fog gradually increased in intensity during this night.

ROBBERY OF BABB HARDWARE STORE SOLVED WITH ARREST OF 2 YOUTHS

Less than four hours after the robbery had been reported Thursday morning, police arrested William Moore, 19, this city, and Roy Breakall, 19, West Third Street, who confessed to the theft of four .32 calibre revolvers, $40 in cash and $6 worth of ammunition from the Babb Hardware store, 16 South Detroit Street, Wednesday night.

Most of the loot, valued at $115, was recovered, including two revolvers, a quantity of shells and $35.

Clue discovered by Patrolman Charles Thompson, who investigated the robbery Thursday morning, led him to suspect the two youths and resulted in their arrest at Breakall's home at 10 o'clock Thursday morning as they were preparing to go hunting with the stolen guns.

The youths first denied the robbery very but broke down after an hour's grilling at police headquarters. Both boys have police records, authorities say.

They effected entrance to the hardware store Wednesday night by breaking off an iron bar and prying open a rear window, and then escaped through a rear door by breaking two padlocks with a heavy wrecking bar.

Moore and Breakall divided the loot after escaping, they said. Patrolman Thompson found two revolvers hidden in Moore's back yard and $18 in cash and some ammunition was discovered in an upstairs room at his home. Breakall had concealed $17 in cash and five boxes of shells in his home. The youths spent the remainder of the money. They have refused to divulge the hiding place of the other two revolvers.

The youths are being held at police headquarters and will probably be arraigned in Police Court or before a Justice of the Peace Friday on charges of burglary and larceny, Police Chief M. E. Graham.

Employees of the hardware store asserted it was the second robbery of the establishment during the past two years.

Credit for unraveling the robbery is given Patrolman Thompson.

VILLAGE MUST NOT ASSESS EDUCATION BOARD IS RULING

Power of a village cannot be extended to make an assessment for special benefits against the board of education of the village, Court of Appeals held in reversing a decision of Common Pleas Court dismissing a petition of The Board of Education of Cedarville Township Rural School District against F. A. Jackson, treasurer of Greene County.

The township education board brought an injunction suit in Common Pleas Court to prevent collection of an assessment levied by council of the village, abutting upon and adjacent to the lands owned by the school district. Trial court dismissed the petition and the board prosecuted error.

In the opinion of the Appellate Court, the sole question relates to the power of the village to make an assessment for special benefits against the education board and it was held in an early case by the state supreme court that such an assessment could not be made. No change has since been made in the statute to supercede the decision of the supreme court, it held.

Counsel for defendant in error referred to a section in the law which makes it obligatory upon the board of education to make a levy to pay the judgment, but it would be necessary in order to obtain the benefit of the section for the village to first obtain a judgment, the higher court held.

In default of power to make the assessment, no legal judgment could be obtained, so that the amended section would not add anything, in the present case, to the law as it formerly existed, or in other words, the amendment would not validate the assessment, the court ruled.

The Appellate Court admitted there is a measure of justice in the contention of the village that the education board should pay its proper share of the improvements mentioned, but in view of the state law, these assessments cannot be rendered valid in the absence of legislation expressly providing for them.

Attorney General C. C. Crabbe, H. H. Griswold, first assistant attorney general, and W. Dale Dunifon, second assistant attorney general, represent the education board, while Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall is attorney for the defendant in error.

MODISH MIEZI—They'll Get A Name Before Christmas

By JAY V. JAY

The doll of Mitzi's has too many names now. Mitzi has simply got to get down to the business of letter opening and cataloguing. Polly has come to help her. First thing of course, is to be comfortable and leisurely, so Mitzi is going to offer Polly a negligee to lounge in. Mitzi herself is wearing a pajama style negligee trimmed with marabou. "Have you seen the bloomers, petticoats and garters all in one?" asks Mitzi, holding up the garment. "No," says Polly, "but have you seen this costume slip with an open back panel. It's wonderful for dancing."

The doll has forgotten her anxiety about a name during this interesting chatter about lingerie. Mitzi is wearing a crepe de chine robe with a diagonal neckline supported by three ribbons over the shoulder. Polly is wearing a pajama suit with a lace yoke and lace jabot down the front. It reminds her so much of another pajama suit she saw which in turn reminds Mitzi of something she would like to buy. The doll wonders just when these two responsible judges are going to get down to something besides judging lingerie. She would like to know what her name is to be and who is to win that $50. Mitzi will tell you before Christmas, that's certain.

READING SERIOUS BOOKS.

IF THERE are those who have been led by the remarkable increase in the number of magazines devoted to short stories of a rather trashy sort to believe that the taste of the American reading public has degenerated, the reports submitted by libraries as to the kind of books now most in demand may cause them to change their minds. In attempting to gauge, from an analysis of library circulation, the literary likes and dislikes of the people, however, consideration must be given to the fact that the libraries as a rule exclude from their shelves unworthy publications and those which, if not downright meretricious, are at least hardly deserving of being classed as good literature. Not a few books are published and read which are denied a place in the public libraries.

But if the circulation of the libraries is not an infallible index to the tastes of the reading public, it indicates roughly what is desired. And it is encouraging to note that there has been an increase in the demand for books that are not intended merely to entertain.

A Los Angeles library states that a life of Christ and a treatise on etiquette have been its best circulators during the past year. Biography is steadily increasing in popularity throughout the country. Everywhere readers are calling for books dealing with radio and other forms of applied science. Books relating to psychoanalysis and vocational guidance are called for frequently. Works treating of the fine arts of the increasing attention that the newspapers are giving to music and exhibitions of paintings. Little is said in the library reports, however, concerning poetry. Notwithstanding a large production of verses, poetry in this age seems to be languishing. At any rate it is difficult to conceive of any publishers being willing nowadays to pay for a volume of poems, say $40,000, the sum that Thomas Moore asked for and received for "Lalla Rookh." And there probably is no contemporary poet that comes near to equalling the income of approximately $25,000 a year that Tennyson received for many years from his poems.

A Chicago bookseller thinks "the age of the novel" is passing. The movies are possibly impairing the demand for fiction; but it is doubtful.

It is not desirable that people should cease to read novels, but it is gratifying that they are giving more attention than formerly to literature that is not purely recreational.

INDISPENSABLE.

THE greatest conveniences in life often prove of exceeding inconvenience—many things considered indispensable being the cause of numberless trials and tribulations. Of other things than women it is said: "you can't get along without them and you can't get along with them."

Every thoughtful man wants to own his own home and to acquire other real estate for reasons known to all, but for other very good reasons some, who may, do not. Possession of unencumbered real estate invites damage suits, attracts friends in trouble hunting bail and friends in need of money hunting an endorsement for a note, and places the possessor on the sucker-lists of stock salesmen and contribution collectors. And there are the taxes to meet.

The ways are manifold in which the automobile gives its owner advantages over the non-owner. So many are the uses of the automobile that the average owner is quickly convinced of their indispensability. But the open road is not a path of roses. The way of the motorist is hard—abounding in motor cops, beset with detours and speed traps, obstructed by accidents and damage suits, infested with punctures and empty gas tanks, and approached by twelve monthly payments and usury.

And yet, though there be evil seconds in every minute, optimism predominates in this life and pessimism is forbidden by popular edict. Life will be "fair to middlin'" or "tol'able" as long as its advantages counteract the disadvantages and there remains some semblance of equality between the agreeable and disagreeable phases of human existence.

AN HONEST MAN'S WORD

MORE than three hundred years ago, Miguel de Cervantes said: "An honest man's word is as good as his bond." Advertisers must be honest men, if they would remain advertisers. Their announcements are signed. They must tell the truth in their advertising. For their own protection as well as yours.

What would it profit a man to advertise "Pure, virgin-wool suits," only to have you discover they were shoddy? You would soon separate the sheep from the cotton. And you would never deal with that man again. And, further, you would tell all your acquaintances what a skinflint he was.

As a matter of business, if not of personal principle, an advertiser must tell the truth in his signed announcements. That's what makes the advertising columns such reliable guides to honest merchandise. The printed announcements are bonds between you and the advertiser.

Read the advertisements. Read them regularly. To be informed on the newest and best in everything. To save hours of shopping. To make the family purse do a bigger, better job. To get goods of known quality at the most attractive price.

You would not plan a motor trip without first consulting road-maps and guide books. Is it logical to plan a shopping trip without first consulting the advertisements? Read the advertisements. Then go to the stores with your mind more than half made up.

A signed advertisement is, in effect a sealed bond between you and the advertiser.

XMAS GIFTS EASILY MADE

Appreciating the fact that many women are still racking their brains to think what to make for this or that friend for Christmas, I offer the following suggestions for inexpensive gifts.

Cat Sachets: These are very new. They consist of a cat's head made of satin taffeta ribbon, the eyes, the nose and whiskers drawn on the ribbon with black ink. To make them, take a four inch length of pink ribbon which is two inches wide, and double it; at the crease, where it is doubled, stitch diagonally on each corner—thus making kitty's ears! Then stuff the "face", gather the ribbon together at the "neck", and shake some violet sachet into the little opening before sewing it up tight and covering the seam with a baby ribbon bow.

The New Baby Blankets: Buy two lengths of white flannel. Secure three sides together with feather-stitching done in pink mercerized cotton (or bind the edges with wash ribbon). Leave the fourth side open like a pillow case. Into this end slip a square of rubber the same size as the blankets. These blankets are used on the mother's lap when she holds baby. If they are accidentally wet, they may be washed out—the rubber being easily removed.

The New Rubber Bibs: This is another up-to-the-minute article for young children. It consists of an egg-shaped piece of rubber with a hole in it at the "pointed" end of the egg. Through this hole goes the little tot's head. How much simpler it is to draw such a bib over a child's head—instead of having to fuss tying bib strings! Any woman can decorate such a bib attractively—pinkening its edges and perhaps stenciling some design on it.

New Book Bags: Although these are shown in leather in the shops, I see no reason why some heavy material such as imitation tapestry or rep should not be used in place of leather. They are made exactly like a flat pocketbook which has two leather handles; but instead of having a pocket for money in the center, they open out flat and the two covers of a novel slip into either side, then, when the handles are brought together again, the resulting effect is that of a handbag. Books carried in a little case of this sort do not show their titles—indeed the entire cover of the volume is concealed. It is much more convenient to carry a book thus, by handles, than under one's arm. And because it is neater and smarter, I believe women will welcome them.

Tomorrow—The Christmas Plum Pudding.

OUT OF THIS LIFE
Out of this life I shall never take Things of silver and gold I make.

All that I cherish and hoard away
After I leave, on the earth must stay.

Though I have toiled for a painting rare
To hang on my wall, I must leave it there.

Though I call it mine and I boast
Its worth
I must give it up when I quit the earth.

All that I gather and all that I keep,
I must leave behind when I fall asleep.

And I wonder often what I shall own
In that other life, when I pass alone.

What shall they find and what shall they see
In the soul that answers the call for me?

Shall the great Judge learn, when my task is through,
That my spirit had gathered some riches, too?

Or shall at the last it be mine to find
That all I had worked for I'd left behind?

TRAINING

Emerson once said that the best drill for an orator was a course of mobs.

Opposition is what keeps the moral blood of the world circulating in a healthy manner. Trouble and hardship test the fibre of a man. And every time a man gets a good hard kick, or trip-up, he is better fitted to go ahead and battle for a more worthwhile stand in this world. It's training that fits us all to cope with tasks that look impossible. And the test of any character is always a test of training.

Elbert Hubbard once said that men did not lack strength, but the will to concentrate and act. Training teaches a man how to concentrate and gives him the courage to act at the right time.

Fear is the bugaboo of progress. He who is trained to face fear, walks gloriously past it.

The thing that inspires us to greater efforts and to the achievements that stir our souls, is the very thing of training, for we are enabled to crystallize all manner of forces under stress and to make them pull for us in cooperation. Training puts faith into your veins.

In every athletic contest, training tells the whole story. Looks have little to do in such a case. It's the heart and the condition that training has made alert and ready.

We may get our training from everywhere and from everything. Many men's eyes are their two watchful secretaries. Ever looking ever searching, ever picking up ideas and appreciating new wonders.

I sometimes think that one of the greatest fruits of training is control. For the man who has acquired it starts ruling himself before he tries to rule anything else in this world.

Trained men and women get the jobs—somehow. You see the jobs come to them.

By HENRY L. FARRELL

(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Dec. 3 (United Press)—Elaborate scouting systems, employment of numerous skilled observers and the use of a highly technical chart plan of listing plays and players may be abolished either by legislation or through a gentlemen's agreement at the winter football meetings.

Bill Roper, Princeton coach, said recently that he was thinking seriously of proposing at the winter meeting of the coaches association that the system of scouting teams be dropped altogether.

Roper said after his team had annihilated Harvard that he hadn't seen Harvard in action all season and that the only information he had received about the Harvard team came from casual sources or was volunteered.

He admits that it isn't necessary to close all sources of information about the strength or weakness of an opposing team because as long as the game is played in public there will be no way to stop a friend or an alumnus from telling a coach something about the team's team has to play.

What he objects to is highly systematized scouting, the practice of assigning a scout to cover every team on the schedule in every game and the use of charts in recording every play.

Some coaches, including Pop Warner and Knute Rockne have made light of the benefits to be derived from scouting. They do some, of course, for their own information but it may be done in self-defense.

Rockne apparently thinks there is more to be gained by getting information on opposing teams than he admits because in his new book, "Coaching," he devotes lengthy space to instructions on the form sheets that can be used to the best advantage in coaching although he does not give the system his endorsement.

The Notre Dame coach has been so liberal in teaching his system at summer schools that he certainly cannot be charged with any desire to keep his football a secret.

The story is told of Pop Warner that he once was having breakfast with the coach of a team that his team was to play in the afternoon. Warner knew that his team had been well scouted and he humorously remarked that the time and trouble had been wasted.

"Here are the plays that I am going to use this afternoon," he said, and drew a diagram of five plays on the table cloth. He used only those five plays and his team won.

There has been no effort to stop scouts from looking at teams in many cases the scout applies directly to the athletic office of the team that he is to scout for choice seats—and gets them.

It is doubtful that there is enough evil in the idea of scouting to get the game involved in any fight about it. If any coach believes sufficiently in its importance he will get his information regardless of rules or agreements. If a coach does not see any value in second hand information, he doesn't have to employ scouts.

Many coaches and fans will not agree with Roper that scouting is "bad ethics and poor sportsmanship." As long as it is done in the open it certainly can't be compared with the signal stealing stunts of the old days.

Poor Light Puts Production to Sleep—

Good Lighting Wakes It Up

The well-lighted factory is the pace-maker in its field—and enjoys costs appreciably lower than do competitors. This has been proved by engineers and works managers in every branch of industry.

Yet four of every five plants are poorly lighted—have lighting that makes production cost excessive.

Good artificial lighting in your plant can give 15% increase or more in production or its equivalent in lowered manufacturing cost.

This problem of proper lighting in the factory is one of great importance and may mean the difference between profits and losses when the balance sheet is drawn.

Without obligation to you, we will gladly investigate your lighting needs and recommend improvements that will enable you to decrease your cost of production by increasing production with the same men and equipment.

PRINCE OF WALES DOESN'T FALL FROM HORSE-ITS THE HORSE THAT FALLS

London, Dec. 3.—Why does the Prince of Wales fall so frequently from his horse?

A British newspaper person took this question and went to the head of authority—the Prince himself, not a movie.

"I don't fall," replied Wales. "It's the horse that falls. What do you want me to do—remain in the air?"

A lot of people think because he is always falling from his horse he should be called the "Quince of Wales." Tory newspapers are demanding less fiery steeds and safer jumps for the heir to the throne.

A controversy rages over whether the Prince is a good or bad rider. Hunters favor the former view. They say only good riders take risks of a fall whereas poor riders steer their mounts through hedge-gaps or stop to open the gate.

The uninitiated however are not sure but that the Prince is a feeble horseman. That may be because his falls are bannerlined in the papers while the ordinary rider doesn't get into print.

British gamblers have quit playing "beaver" and are betting on how many falls the Prince will have this year. Two this month ran his total to thirteen since November, 1920.

Thirteen falls wins him the prize in the Most Falls from a Horse Contest. Here's his score previous to this year:

November, 1920.—Fall while hunting in Norfolk.

December, 1920.—Fall while hunting in the Grafton country.

March, 1921.—Thrown during Grenadier Guards point-to-point races near Eanbury, but remounted and finished third.

June, 1921.—Thrown while playing polo at Aldershot. Slightly lamed.

November, 1922.—Fall while riding with the Badminton Hounds near Malmesbury. Suffered contusion of ankle and sprain and was on crutches for several days.

December, 1922.—Thrown at the Oxford University Bullington Club point-to-point races at Garlington.

February, 1923.—Knocked his knee while hunting.

March, 1923.—Thrown during Beaufort Hunt point-to-point races at Larkhill.

March, 1923.—Thrown during Army point-to-point races near Reading.

February, 1924.—Fall while schooling a hunter near Leighton

MORE INDIANS WORK SAYS BUREAU REPORT

Washington, Dec. 2.—The American Indian is fast passing from the stage when the squaw did the work and the life of the brave was one of continual rest.

A substantial increase in the number of Indians who are farming and an increase in the amount of acreage cultivated is noted in the annual report of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs submitted to Secretary of the Interior Work today.

"The adoption of five-year systematic agricultural programs with a plan of industrial surveys of the home and landholdings has led to material progress in the agricultural pursuits of the Indian," the report stated. "The total area of irrigable lands under construction work on Indian projects approximates 636,000 acres with a view to a total future area of 1,370,000 acres. The estimated value of crops raised on these projects during the year was $23,000,000.

CONVICTIONS ARE AFFIRMED AGAINST HORNICK AND PRINCE

Convictions and subsequent fines recently imposed in Probate Court upon John G. Hornick, proprietor of the Hornick Electric Shop, East Main Street, and Horace E. Prince, auto agent, South Detroit Street, for alleged keeping of gambling houses in which Bruce Leveck, of Jamestown, and Albert Smith, this city, were allowed to use rooms for the purpose of recording wagers on race horses, are affirmed by the Court of Appeals in decisions handed down Wednesday.

The Appellate Court ruled that "while the evidence is not strong, it is sufficient to support the judgments of the trial court in each case, especially so in view of the fact that the defense in each case offered no evidence in behalf of either of the defendants."

The only question to be decided in the opinion of the higher court, was whether the plaintiffs had knowledge of the wagers and pools being recorded as charged in the affidavits. The evidence in the matter is sufficient to support the judgments of the court held.

Prince and Hornick were arrested in the anti-gambling crusade inaugurated in the county several months ago and were convicted at jury trials in Probate Court. The defense appealed in error.

Attorney C. L. Darlington represented the defendants and Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall and City Solicitor J. A. Finney were the prosecuting attorneys.

IRISH BOUNDARY DISPUTE SETTLED

London, Dec. 3.—The Irish boundary dispute, according to reliable sources today has been settled and details will be announced later.

The Irish dissatisfaction with the work of the commission appointed to settle the boundary line between Ulster and the free state became evident recently with the resignation of John MacNeill from the board.

At the time it was suggested that the situation might lead to new hostilities in Ireland in view of reported boundary alterations to the disadvantage of the Free State.

Thereafter President Cosgrave and the Ulster premier, Sir James Craig were invited to London to discuss the situation and the British government.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull faded or streaked appearance this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wreth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, for only 75 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

Well-known druggists say everybody uses Wreth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been used—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks, glossy, soft and beautiful.

Sohn's Drug Store Declares Money Back If One Bottle Doesn't Make Any Stomach Sufferer Happy.

Why bother with slow actors when one tablespoonful of Dare's Mentha Pepsin, a splendid and pleasant elixir will cause gas, bloating, heaviness, heartburn or any upset condition of the stomach to speedily vanish.

Indeed if it wasn't such a wonderfully efficient remedy, tens of thousands of bottles would not be sold daily.—Adv.

HE COUGHED FOR TWO YEARS SWORE OFF

After coughing for two years almost continuously a man of considerable means got thin and tired and worn out, made his will, and was ready to quit the big game of life.

A friend spoke to him about Broncholine Emulsion and now life to him is very sweet indeed.

That's the kind of a cough that is put out of business with amazing speed when the cougher is wise to Broncholine Emulsion.

Tough old coughs—persistent coughs—coughs that hang on and rob people of their sleep—those are the kind of coughs Broncholine likes to tackle.

Many times such coughs linger after the Grippe or a heavy cold, and if you have one or know of anyone who has one keep Broncholine Emulsion in mind.

It isn't just a cheap sweet cough syrup—it's the best cough remedy—and the best is never cheap. Sayre and Hemphill and dealers everywhere can supply you.—Adv.

formed under as favorable circumstances as possible.

About a year ago, Mr. Boyce, one of our High School teachers, seeing the crying need of a meeting place for our boys, conceived the idea of organizing a Club for the boys of high school age. He broached the proposition to a few of the senior boys who immediately fell in with the idea, and so the Chi Beta Club came into existence. A set of by-laws were adopted that would do credit to any institution, morality and clean living being the keynote. A large room on West Main Street was secured, the expenses being borne by the members in the form of dues; practically all the equipment being spare pieces of furniture which the boys brought from home. This has been quite a drawback, as all our boys come from nice, comfortable homes, and there is no inspiration or encouragement in having to spend our spare time in a building looking like a barn. So the boys are putting on a play at the High School Auditorium on Friday evening, December 4th; the proceeds to be used in buying a rug and some furniture for our club room.

We feel that we have been very fortunate in our selection of a play as well as our director. Sunbonnet Sue is a very pretty comedy-drama, depicting the Hillbillies of Arkansas. Mrs. Harry Shannon is giving her personal direction to the play and the insurance the public as to the merit of the work. There will be music and other forms of entertainment, and we feel that the public will receive value received for the price of their tickets.

Reserved seats are now to be had at Sohn's Drug Store. Let's all go.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Man is naturally sociable and seeks his kind during his hours of recreation and play. Realizing this, and how important it is that the leisure hours of Youth be safeguarded and his recreation guided into right channels, municipalities and communities as a rule are providing places of meeting for the young people; so we find the YMCA, YWCA, community centers, etc.

Unfortunately, no such place is to be found in our city, and the average young man is turned loose to find his own entertainment. It is easy to see how dangerous this is, and how easily a young life may be wrecked for time and eternity before he learns how to live. It is most important that our young manhood be carefully safeguarded, and their life habits

STREAM POLLUTION DRIVE BEARS FRUIT

Columbus, O., Dec. 3.—The concerted, state-wide drive against stream pollution has begun to bear fruit, state health director John B. Monger told the United Press today. With few exceptions, cities throughout the state are cooperating with the health department in preserving the streams by eliminating pollution, Dr. Monger declared.

Several cities, the health director said have declared emergencies existed and have authorized bond issues for the construction of huge sewage disposal plants and are taking other means for general improvement of conditions.

I've sat around this hot stove of ours for the last two months listening to the Big Talk of the above named gentlemen and have remained calm, peaceful, polite and respectful. I've heard them spill Big Talk on 15-inch, 16-inch and 17-inch CORN until my head or something ached! So last week in this ad, I offered $1.00 to ANYBODY who would bring in ONE FIFTEEN-INCH EAR OF CORN!

I was so scared I'd have to give away $5,000 or $6,000 that I LIMITED the number of dollars to the FIRST TEN who came in.

UP TO YET I HAVEN'T PAID OUT ONE DOLLAR! Yessir, the above named gentlemen sure had ME kidded. The DOLLAR per ear offer is STILL OPEN.

I would appreciate it if you who are reading this would call up any of these men you know and tell them what I'm saying here. They may miss this issue of the paper.

Yours truly,

BILL MCCALLISTER.

He's driven this car of his over 200,000 miles. He only wanted $800 to BOOT this year! Generally he's been asking a couple thousand extra. Zene is a Clinton County stock raiser.

Not So Bad, Eh?

This store has sold Radiant Home Coal Burners for THIRTY years and up to now we've never had to REPLACE a BOWL! If you feel that you'd get tired of the Radiant Home after using one for 8 or 10 years, you'd better try some other brand that wears out quicker.

To The Ladies!

We want to thank publicly the hundred or so lady folks who came in here last week and looked over our stock of goods ESPECIALLY bought for THEM! Our line of Women's Friend Washing Machines never got so much attention in their lives and are real stuck up on this account. There's going to be a lot of husbands here in town have to "dig" for one of these Washing Machines before Xmas! The Percolators, Carving Sets, Kitchen Equipment and Cook Stoves came in for plenty of attention too. It was really surprising the list of things the ladies THEMSELVES uncovered!

Hutch, The RAT TRAP King!

He's got $1.40 a doz. price on these and has about 11 doz. left out of 5 carloads! It's sure going to be a heluva winter for rats, what I mean. Ask Hutch about some of his plans.

I says I'd stand for it if they gimme something to carve, so after hemmin' and hawin' a couple hours they bought me a turkey to practice on. I aim to take on a lotta weight in the new job. I'm going to try and get in the Corn Huskin' Dept. I'll see to it that they throw in a farm if I can work 'em hard enuf.

"High Grade Raw Milk Is Not Safe Milk"

The question as to whether high-grade raw milk is 'safe milk' was carefully considered and answered in the negative. Personal experience in the operation of a certified dairy has resulted in the firm conviction that no precautions humanly possible are enough to prevent at all times the transmission of disease germs through raw milk. Employees will frequently have intestinal disturbances and engage in a milking or bottling operation before disclosing their condition. They will sneeze into their hands and even under the most rigid supervision continue milking without precautions. They can be in an infective condition for a day or two prior to the occurrence of the first symptoms in certain infectious diseases. Finally, health examinations, while valuable, cannot guarantee the discovery of all carriers. It was therefore decided to adopt the policy that while the safety of raw milk increases as the precautions surrounding it increase, no milk, how carefully safeguarded, can be sufficiently safe in its raw state.

"High grade raw milk, properly pasteurized or boiled is safe milk.

"What then can be considered to be really safe milk? Briefly, it is believed that the wisest answer to this question is 'High-grade raw milk, properly pasteurized or boiled.' By 'properly pasteurized' is meant 'pasteurized under the regular supervision of and in apparatus approved by a competent health authority.'

For over five years this dairy has been supplying hundreds of Xenia citizens with pure, wholesome, clarified and pasteurized milk. We point with pride to the fact that during this length of time NOT ONE CASE OF ILLNESS among our customers due to impure milk has been reported to us.

The milk from this dairy is Pasteurized and Clarified in strict accordance with all regulations.

RALPH HIGHLEY HAS FIRST 1926 LICENSE

Distribution of automobile passenger licenses for 1926 was begun at the new offices of the Greene County Auto Club on North Detroit Street Tuesday.

The first supply of 4,000 passenger plates received is expected to vanish quickly, although motorists are prohibited from using the new tags until January 1.

Ralph Highley, this city, was the first motorist in Greene County to purchase the new chocolate and white colored tag for next year. He was given No. 195,001.

Distribution of the auto tags is being made by the auto club again this year and by six deputy commissioners, appointed over the county by Auditor R. O. Wead.

Distribution by the county would mean an expense of more than $2,500, it is said.

SENSE OF HUMOR IS NECESSARY PART OF AN IDEAL HUSBAND

Columbus, O., Dec. 3.—To find that figure of legend, the ideal husband, a man can be examined on eleven points, and if he scores high on all of them he must be near the ideal, according to Daisy Deane Williamson of the University of New Hampshire, extension service.

The part of an ideal husband in the maintenance of a happy, contented and prosperous home, Miss Williamson said, involves these eleven points:

Have a sense of humor; assume a share of responsibility in bringing up the children; co-operate with the wife in making a family budget; be willing to raise the standard of living as finances permit; provide proper working equipment for the home; assume responsibility for the fuel supply and the grounds and buildings; help keep things in their place; be able to help with the housework; furnish a vacation and recreation for the wife; help to keep grumblings out of the home; and continue the practice of common courtesies observed before marriage.

A man who can qualify on all these points should be an ideal husband, Miss Williamson declared.

SYNOPSIS

Connemara Moore, after hours of exciting adventures aboard mysterious vessels in Long Island Sound, has plunged overboard from the last of them and is swimming toward shore. It is pitch dark but in the water she comes in contact with a creature whom she instinctively believes to be a friend. It is Bugle, a dog. Connemara was to have announced her engagement tonight, but, instead, stole away from her Aunt Celimena's home. Later she found herself in the company of rum-runners—or revenue officers.

The dog swam along beside her. "Nice boy, good boy!" she murmured at intervals, and always in return there was the friendly little "Woof! Woof!"—if only the wisp too were as well intentioned and kindly, thought Connemara, who, though never ostentatious in her display of wisdom or erudition, was acquainted with mottoes and classic quotations, however slightly.

On they swam. "Home, Bugle, home please!" pleaded Connemara. She slackened her stroke, and the dog stopped too. He began nosing about her shoulders, and she realized that he was seeking a tooth hold, whereby he might take her in his mouth and carry her home.

"Oh, Bugle, if you were a man, I'd marry you, dear, however you felt about it!" Bugle, unacquainted with the plot, seemed to appreciate the compliment. For, though the gossamer chemise du jour which clung lankly to her shoulder blades offered no hospitality to his gallant teeth, when her arm was about his neck he started to swim again, and was making fair headway with his lovely burden, of whose bodily beauty he was unaware, though her sweetness of heart must have spoken to his nobility through her gentle voice and touch.

"No, no, Bugle, dear," she addressed his woolly ear, "I cannot let you support me. I'm tired, but I can still paddle along." So she took her arm from his neck, and started once more to swim by his side. But not for long. Bugle, like most successful heroes, had not undertaken his rescue till safety was in sight. For soon, on a downward stroke, her arm was entangled in seaweed.

"Land," she exclaimed, like Columbus and Cortez, "is near."

And, like Columbus and Cortez, she was right. She felt for bottom and touched it. It was a rough bottom, and a rocky one. How fortunate that she had been unable to shed the slippers which now protected her delicate feet.

"We never know, or at least not always, do we, Bugle, when our misfortunes are blessings!" Bugle, still swimming beside her, did not answer, but she felt that somewhere under the dark water he had wagged his praiseworthy tail.

The water was only to her hipbones. It seemed quieter here and calmer. Bugle must have led her to a cove—one he knew, probably, and therefore a safe haven, for no such dog as this could have been developed in any but refined and respectable surroundings. Which shows how well Connemara knew the world.

There was a spluttering and shaking at her side. Bugle had stopped swimming and come to his feet. What a tall dog he was! His head was level with her waist. Even as she walked uncomfortably over the stones, Connemara speculated on the breed of this noble animal, for she was ever interested in the sciences, natural or applied, and in history, natural, personal, or private.

Shallower and shallower grew the water, nearer and nearer the shore and peace, at least until day broke all over anything. But until then she would sleep tranquilly on this strand of sandy beach, secure in the protection of a strong and chivalrous friend.

But it wasn't a sandy shore; it was one of those interesting arrangements of slime, reeds, seaweed and small stones cleverly sharpened on three sides with which the north shore of Long Island is irrevocably bound.

Flowing through the slime of mud and clams, active and extinct, her knickers and chemise of apricot siffle bound with turquoise, her silver stockings rolled just below her rosy dimpled knees, water dripping from her glorious cuprous tresses on her creamy marble back, Connemara must have presented a picture of appealing beauty had there been light and an eye to behold her. But, alas, there was neither. Only the soothing of summer winds, the lap of little black waves as the tide raced out to sea and the stout heart beating, beating beneath the shaggy coat which pressed her thigh, guiding her gently. Safely ashore, they shook themselves, as it were, by mutual consent. Then Bugle's sweet cold nose in her palm and his gentle "R-r-r" said as plainly as words of one syllable, "Come with me!"

Slowly he guided her a little way up the shore, slightly inland. Connemara walked carefully over the stones fearing a little to turn her ankle which, without costume or chaperone, might be awkward.

Bugle stopped and Connemara knew they had reached a destination.

"Here, Bugle?" inquired Connemara affectionately.

"R-r-r," replied Bugle distinctly, and lay down.

Sand! Soft and warm sand. The intelligent and thoughtful beast had surmised that she was in need of rest, and led her to what was probably the most comfortable place for miles around.

Connemara lay down beside him and snuggled close to his hide. By this time he was almost dry and, though still a little damp, was warmer than the girl he had decided to befriend.

In a few minutes Bugle was asleep.

Propped gracefully against him, Connemara would have slept too, but for the questions which raced inantly through her mind, just as though there were answers for them. Why had McTish left her, or had he? Who was Lucy? What happened after she left the ship, and why should any of it have happened? And oh, why, why had Aunt Celimena made such ridiculous conditions? It was all her fault, really.

This thought was rather comforting, and, snuggling a little closer to Bugle, she fell asleep.

She was awakened by a gentle touch. Opening her eyes, she saw that it was nearly dawn. A grayish light, faintly suffused with pink, made visible the green bushes in whose shelter she had slept in a patch of sand. Then she saw Bugle and knew what had waked her.

Bugle was covering her up. He had realized that she was cold, this kindly and intelligent beast.

Beast? No, never—hero was a better word. Connemara was too young and too cold to reflect how often they are interchangeable.

"Angel!" She thus addressed Bugle, and he wagged his tail appreciatively in acknowledgment of her praise. But in a moment he was off again, having covered her carefully with something big and heavy, which felt very good.

Connemara huddled beneath it for a moment, and then sat up to see what it was.

An oilskin coat, and a very nice one. Not an old flung-away one which Bugle might have found in the bushes, but a clean, quite new one, which he had either dragged from a closet or someone had lent him, at his request, to cover her up.

Connemara stood up to examine it. A good one indeed! Except, as she noticed a minute later, for a square patch which had been torn jaggedly out of one of the fronts.

Who was he? She wondered as she slipped the thing on. Tall, she knew that, for his coat flapped around her feet. Nice? She thrust her hand in his pocket. A clean handkerchief, large and of fine, pure linen. No monogram, no perfume, not even a laundry mark.

What My Neighbor Says

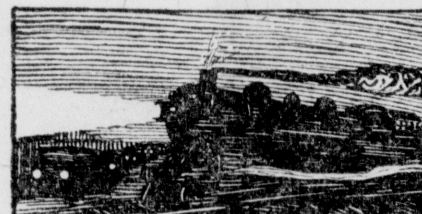

Is of Interest to Xenia Folks.

When one has had the misfortune to suffer from backache, headaches, dizziness, urinary disorders and other kidney ills—and has found relief from all this sickness and suffering, that person's advice is of untold value to friends and neighbors. The following case is only one of many thousands, but it is that of a Xenia resident. Who could ask for a better example?

Leonard Jones, car inspector, Home Ave., says: "Heavy lifting and working in a cramped position brought on backache. I was stiff and lame across my back. After I had worked in a cramped position for a few minutes I could hardly straighten. Doan's Pills rid me of the attack."

SEVERAL YEARS LATER Mr. Jones said: "Doan's Pills cured me of kidney trouble and I have no further need for them."

Health Hints
by the Father of Physical Culture

The errors in diet that cause premature aging are chiefly those that have to do with the quantity of food eaten. There are, however, some well recognized dietetic laws that indicate what foods should be used and which should be omitted or decreased as one advances in years.

First among these foods which the old should use sparingly are the heavy meats. There are two well recognized physiological indications that heavy meats are not required in the later period of life. One is the decay of the teeth. Of course it does not follow that loss of teeth must occur, even in old age; many people retain them. However, all foods except the heavy meats may be so selected or prepared that they can be properly mixed with the saliva in the mouth and thus prepared for the digestion without teeth. The dentist, by very skillfully replacing the natural teeth, performs a valuable service to our appearance and comfort; but in rendering it possible for the aged to continue the meat diet of vigorous middle life he may often work actual injury.

The more positive indications that meat is superfluous to the old is to be found in the prevalence of kidney trouble and the frequency with which this causes death in the latter part of life.

The chief chemical element of lean meat is nitrogen, and the secretion from the body of this element in the form of urea is the chief function of the kidneys. By the continued heavy use of meat the kidneys are overtaxed, resulting in their breakdown and the retention of the nitrogenous elements which poison the body.

Sufficient protein, or nitrogenous food elements, can always be secured in more digestible form from eggs, milk, nuts and grain. Where these foods are taken in sufficient quantity there is no positive need for meat in the diet at any time. During the early period of growth and the activities of early manhood the need for meats to supply protein for the growth and replacing of tissues is much greater than in advanced years, when growth has altogether ceased and the rate of the replacement of tissues is much slower.

The diet for old age should, therefore, be chiefly vegetarian. The animal foods that are consumed should be of the more easily digestible form.
